However, if you object to the processing of your personal data, you may not be able to access and use certain information, features or services on the Site.

6/ Cookies

6.1/ What are cookies?

Cookies are small files that may be downloaded to your computer equipment when you access and use our Site. They allow the Site to recognise your device and store information about your preferences or past actions.

Some of your personal data may be stored in cookies, if you have consented, for example, to facilitate secure online access so that you do not have to re-enter your login and password.

6.2/ What do we use cookies for?

Cookies set by BIRDZ

We use cookies to record the preferences of our users, so that we can record information between two visits to the same website on the same device. They allow us to save a shopping cart, login details or interface customisation elements. They do not require the user's consent.

This allows us to provide content that is more relevant to your needs and, in doing so, improve our service. Cookies can be used to determine whether there has been contact between us and your hardware in the past.

Only the cookie on your hardware is identified.

These cookies are also used to Improve your experience on the Site: to be able to log in to the service, remember preferences, personalise the experience, etc.

Improve our services: some cookies allow us to make statistics on the use of our services, to better understand the habits and preferences of our different types of users, etc.

List of cookies

A cookie is a small data file (text file) that a website, when accessed by a user, asks your browser to store on your device in order to remember information about you, such as your language preferences or login information. We set these cookies called internal cookies. We also use third-party cookies, which are cookies from a different domain than the website you are visiting, for our advertising and marketing efforts. Specifically, we use cookies and other tracking technologies for the following purposes:

Strictly necessary cookies

These cookies are necessary for the operation of the website and cannot be disabled in our systems. They are generally set in response to actions you have taken that constitute a request for services, such as setting your privacy preferences, logging in or filling in forms. You can set your browser to block or be informed of the existence of these cookies, but some parts of the website may be affected. These cookies do not store any personally identifying information.

6.3/ Consent

If you continue to visit and/or use our Site, it means that you consent to the use of cookies as described herein.

You may revoke this consent at any time.

You can also manage and control the cookies we use on our Site by using the cookie settings.

6.4/ How do I disable or delete cookies?

If you choose not to accept cookies, you can still access and use the Site.

Most browsers automatically accept cookies.

You can prevent HTTP cookies from being stored on your device by setting your browser not to accept cookies.

You can delete cookies from your hardware at any time by following the procedure provided here.

6.5/ Retention period

We do not retain any personal data collected through cookies for longer than thirteen (13) months from the time the relevant cookie is deposited on your hardware.

7/ Incident reporting

In accordance with applicable law, we undertake to inform users of our Site in the event of a data protection incident.

8/ Data protection

We are committed to ensuring reasonable protection of your data (with technical, physical and administrative measures) in order to protect such data against loss, theft, unauthorised access, disclosure, copying, use, modification or destruction.

9/ Changes to the Policy

We may update this Policy at any time to reflect changes in our personal data collection and cookie use practices.

We will notify you of any changes to this Policy, either by posting any new version on the Site or by notifying you by email, and the new version will take effect from the date of posting or email notification, as applicable.
